

We translate as if lives depend on us.

Clients always ask,

“What makes you different than other translation companies?”

What sets GLTaC apart is the documented low error rates and reliable delivery of complex translations that are technically accurate and compliant with industry regulations.

GLTaC has almost 30 years of experience and goes beyond translation to provide regulatory information to the chemical industry, in addition to identifying conflicts in published regulations and correcting errors in source documents. With every translation project, the GLTaC goal is to achieve Six Sigma quality while keeping a reasonable cost for the clients, thus providing the utmost value-added services.

GLTaC applies the same rigorous quality control methods to Safety Data Sheets (SDS), vehicle manuals, training material, and other documents in every industry served. GLTaC strives for a level of excellence that measurably differentiates GLTaC translation solutions from other Language Service Companies (LSCs), resulting in GLTaC growth through positive client referrals.

“I was very pleased with the service and timeliness of my request. A partner company put me in touch and I worked with your project management team from that point. They were very helpful, answered my questions, and were prompt with delivery. I am grateful to be in touch with your business, and to know that we can turn to GLTaC in the future for translation needs.”

Human Translation (HT): The Human Touch

GLTaC recognizes the importance of Human Translation (HT), which is why it is the only option for the most critical translation work in Life Sciences, Military, or Environmental Health and Safety (EHS) documents.

GLTaC service stands out through the level of attention to detail, responsiveness, and ability to consistently exceed expectations. Documented error rates are far below client requirements, and per the ISO 9001:2015 Certification, GLTaC is continually improving processes to reduce the error rates further.

GLTaC focuses on excellence. Therefore, only the most stringently screened professionals in their fields are recruited to do translations. The translators' technical knowledge must be absolute, as demonstrated in a rigorous evaluation process, which was developed utilizing criteria from some of the most demanding clients.

GLTaC can also review SDSs and phrase libraries for quality, including:

- Correct translation
- Current regulatory reference and compliance
- Technical accuracy
- Readability

Lives depend on our translations®

As our global economy increases, communicating in other languages has become an important element in business. For almost 30 years, GLTaC has earned a reputation as a leader in the health and safety field by providing accurate, compliant translations sourced to the correct regulations worldwide. GLTaC is the only Language Service Company (LSC) whose translations appear in over 1,000,000 SDSs each year.

GLTaC was founded as a company dedicated to the accurate translation of health and safety information and other sensitive technical material. GLTaC has always understood that business success often rides on the quality of your translations—and so do people's lives. The combination of accuracy of language, understanding of technical details, and careful quality control has always been a GLTaC operational hallmark.

GLTaC's dedication to quality control is illustrated by the original ISO 9001:2008 certification in 2010 and GLTaC's ISO 9001:2015 certification in 2017.

GLTaC is also ISO 17100:2015 certified and was the first LSC certified under the ASTM F3130-18 standard in 2019.

When lives depend on translations, many of the world's leading companies depend on GLTaC.
